Adopted as Daughter of Local G. A. R. Post

Miss Bessie Barth.

Miss Bessie Barth, 1506 Sixth avenue, was signally honored Saturday evening when she was adopted as a "daughter of the post" by John Buford post No. 243, G. A. R. Her grandfather, James Kinney, for years carried the colors of the post on all public occasions and on his death, Miss Barth volunteered to continue this service.

As a token of appreciation for the interest she has taken in the old soldiers, she was given the title above referred to. Miss Barth, who is employed as a stenographer in the law office of M. E. Sweetser, is one of the popular young ladies of the city, having been elected queen of the 1600 Block and publicly crowned recently. The post also went on record in favor of the Hamill pension bill for veteran civil employees of the government.

BOY SAYS WOMAN THREATENED HIM

Witness in Hollebosch Investigation Makes Charge Against Wife.

"You'll have to call your wife off of this boy. She has threatened him and won't let him get away from here," said Mayor H. M. Schriver to August Van Soya Saturday night during the investigation by the council of charges against Jacobus Hollebosch, saloon-keeper at 831 Fifth avenue.

Van Soya is bartender for Hollebosch, and Mrs. Van Soya, according to Wayne Wiley, one of the witnesses against Hollebosch, accosted him as he was leaving the city hall, and reaching into her purse as if to draw out a weapon, said: "You will take bread and butter from my husband!" Wiley rushed back upstairs and informed the mayor. The woman fled when the police were notified.

Three boys testified against Hollebosch, claiming they had secured intoxicating drinks in the place at various times. The three were Albert Van Auddal, 2614 Fourth avenue; George Burnwood, 805 Ninth avenue; and Wayne Wiley, 2611 Sixth avenue. Wiley was the only one who admitted he was under age, although the mayor claimed when he first interviewed the other two, they also claimed to be minors.

The hearing was continued until some night this week, at which time the mayor will introduce further witnesses in an effort to show that Hollebosch maintained his bar open on Sundays.

AT THE ILLINOIS.

Tonight at the Illinois theatre Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and her son, Russell William Thaw, will be seen in a five-reel Lubin feature picture called "Threads of Destiny." It is not as one would suppose, a white slave picture. Instead, it is a high class dramatic subject, a story of mother love. This being Evelyn's first appearance as a motion picture actress, shows that she can do more than dance or hold down chorus position. Last winter Mrs. Thaw had her own vaudeville company on a tour of the country. This winter she will be one of the leading photo-play stars of the country. Her little son, Russell William, shows unusual talent for a child of his age and he, too, will no doubt grow up as a motion picture star and will some day take the place of Francis Bushman, Maurice Costello or some one of the stars in this generation. The first show at the Illinois starts promptly at 7 o'clock tonight and three performances will be given. The Baker-Dodge company absolutely guarantees that this is a clean, moral picture, one that the entire family may witness.

In the laughing venturesome plot of "7 Keys to Baldpate," George M. Cohan's mystery farce, with a record of one year in New York and six months in Chicago, local theatregoers will find a genuine dead-in-the-earth melodrama intentionally gone wrong to the point of side-splitting burlesque, under a cover of seriousness that is not removed until just before the last curtain falls. In fact "7 Keys to Baldpate" is pure melodrama plus refinement and an additional element of satirical humor that is as delightful as it is unusual. It is said that not in years has such a combination of tense scenes and dramatic situations found their way to the stage via an American author's pen. Mystery and thrills are rampant in Mr. Cohan's latest offering, which discloses the versatility of this genius of the drama in his most confident mood, and the mystery and thrills are all the more enjoyable for the undercurrent of laughter that trails the unfolding of the plot of the piece which Mr. Cohan has made into play form from the story of the same name by Earl Derr Biggers. In its stage dress the strength of the story is accentuated by its actuality, though Cohan foos his audience to the top of his bent. At the opening of the play one learns that William Hollowell Magee, a novelist, has made a wager of $5,000 that he can write a 10,000 word story in 24 hours, the only stipulation that he makes being that he can find the "loneliest spot on earth." In a prologue, Magee is discovered arriving at the aforesaid spot—Baldpate Inn—a summer hotel closed for the winter—and the prologue ends with the accompanying clatter of his typewriter as Magee begins his task. At once he is surrounded by a circle of sensational incidents and for two gripping acts the audience sees Magee the center of a gang of political scoundrels, ex-convicts, adventurers, ghosts and detectives who thicken the plot with so much adroitness that its unraveling seems well nigh hopeless, but which author Cohan accomplishes with the cleverness born of intimate knowledge of the art of stagecraft. In the company which is to present "7 Keys to Baldpate," at the Illinois Nov. 1 are the following players: Cyril Scott, John O'Hara, William L. Gibson, Spencer Monroe, Walter D. Greene, Frank Monroe, J. Hooker Wright, Frank Allworth, Lee Stewart, Laura Bennett, Ethel Intropod, Christine Mayo, Rita Harlan, Hazel Travers, Fannie Mackey.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

SUBSTITUTION.

The imitator is like the counterfeit. He enters the field of business with a cheaper, lower grade article, and, by the way, made as a substitute for the genuine, and generally sold at a cheaper price, assuming that it is "just as good." The dealer is persuaded to handle it on glowing promises of enormous profits—much larger than the regular legitimate profit which is made on the genuine article. The imitator succeeds in playing upon man's natural avarice, places his goods on sale with the dealer, and instructs him to take advantage of the public by substituting the false article for the genuine at every opportunity. You can be pretty sure that whenever you ask for a well-known product, the dealer tells you he has something else that's just as good, or even better, the dealer is going to make a greater profit on that article than the one you call for, and in nine cases out of ten you will get a much inferior article. Some buyers are fastidious enough upon and this encourages the "get-rich-quick" schemers to increase their substitution. This also discourages the legitimate manufacturer who is putting out articles of merchandise that represent honest value to the consumer. Where a man has devoted years of his life in perfecting an article that he knows cannot be excelled in quality; where he has spent thousands of dollars in advertising his goods; and where these goods have been giving universal satisfaction for a long time, great injury results by permitting substitution to rob him of his market and at the same time rob the consumer by selling him a doubtful article at practically the same price. There is no law through which such evil practices can be stopped. The sole remedy is for the legitimate manufacturer to ask the public directly not to patronize dealers who try to substitute a different brand of goods for the kind wanted. The honest dealers know that it is poor business to try to substitute something else for the article wanted.

There is a Certain-teed dealer in your locality who will be pleased to give you further information about our goods and will quote you reasonable prices. If the goods are made by us, remember—we stand behind them.

Now let everybody push for the new state law. Yours truly, OLOF Z. CERVIN.

All the news all the time—The Argus.

URGES SUPPORT OF STATE WIDE BUILDING STATUTE

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 24.—Editor Argus: The next legislature of Illinois will be called upon to pass or to refuse to pass a state-wide building law. According to this law, all buildings erected in Illinois will have to be under state supervision in order to make sure that they will be safe and prevent careless or rascally inclined people from building without regard to the welfare of everybody concerned.

It, therefore, would be well for all voters to ask all candidates to the legislature to express their opinion as to whether they are favorable to such a law or not.

The state of Ohio has a law, and this was brought about by the very terrible school house fire in which so many children were burned to death not long ago. The Ohio law is a good one, but in some ways, no doubt, more conservative than is necessary, and the proposed Illinois law is not so drastic.
